

Foxdenton Estates is a family firm that specialises in the small scale production of English fruit liqueurs to their own special recipe, using apricots, plums, raspberries and rhubarb and traditional wild fruits like sloe and damson. Their aim is to make a good local English drink based on traditional recipes, using gin as the base. They have expanded their range by also producing a special High Strength Gin known as Foxdenton 48% aimed at the growing group of discerning drinkers for whom strength and flavour are important.

The Original 48 London

The multi award winning Foxdenton 48 has a big nose typical of a London Dry but is enhanced by the strength. Plenty of flavour, wonderfully integrated. Deep and complex, this gin is super smooth and mellow while retaining its lively character. The refreshing finish lasts forever.

Sloe Gin

Sloe Gin is one of the most traditional drinks in England and Foxdenton's is made only from sloes, sugar and London Dry Gin so is paler, stronger and less sweet than the majority of others. A real warmer that is perfect out in the field or, for a refreshing drink, is great mixed with Champagne or lemon tonic.

Damson Gin

Almost as popular as Sloe Gin, the fruit is sourced from three English farms. Intense and slightly tart, the flavour of damson is reminiscent of old fashioned cherry drop sweets. Another winter warmer that can be enjoyed the whole year round.

Golden Apricot Gin

Made from apricots grown in Northamptonshire, this new drink has been a wonderful discovery. Picked slightly later in the season when fully ripe for more colour and flavour, the result is amazing. Very almondy on the nose, it almost smells like marzipan. The taste of juicy apricot is sweet but not at all cloying.

Raspberry Gin

Made in the same way as the original Sloe Gin, the sweetness is really a product of the natural fruit rather than added sugar. It is a fabulous colour and tastes delicious on the rocks.

Rhubarb Gin

Foxdenton's latest flavour released in 2016 has been an instant hit with customers. A quintessentially English fruit flavour, Rhubarb Gin is an amazing mix of sweet and tart, just like the best rhubarb and custard pudding.

Winslow Plum Gin

Foxdenton have named this fruit gin after their home town in Buckinghamshire. It is made from plums grown in their own and their neighbours' gardens. The mix of local plum varieties, including Aylesbury, Czar and Victoria create an intensely plummy flavour and the use of darker skinned fruits gives this its lovely, deep colour.
